Placing Blame For Rehovot Stabbing

Enumerating all the public bodies that could have done something to prevent the situation that led to the murder of Rami Rosenberg in Rehovot, "Ha areta" (Non-Party) blames the tragedy on the political character of our national life and the lack of huight into the social causes of delinquency. The distreasing correlation between socio-economic classes and ethnic groups in Israel, which contributes to the sharpening of intercommunity tension, threatens our national solidarity and our social development. The guiff between the groups does not grow narrower with the passage of time; it must be bridged before it is too late proper attention devoted to it and sufficient funds allocated. The paper cities its own campaign for playing rounds in Tel Aviv is one of the ways in which social and educational absorption may be furthered.

either and "Al Hamishmar" (Mapam) continues its editorial criticism of the Sues agreement itself. Not only was larsel left out from the list of countries an attack upon which would allow the re-activation of the base, but a specific clause rules out the return of the British in case of any "Israel attack upon a Middle Eastern state." Commenting on President Eisenhower's speech on the occasion of the 300th anniversary of Jewish colonization in the U.S. "Al Hamishmar" notes in addition that even under the stress sequently, the charge had to be discussed.

Justice Olsham's Judgment Justice Olsham agreed with his colleagues' conclusions, taking exception, however, to Justice Goltein's ruling that the Director of Customs should not have delegated his authority to make regulations actting out the manner in which luxury goods on which tax had been paid should be marked. Since, in his opinion, this was a purely administrative measure and not a legislative one there was no objection to authority being delegated to a leaser official.

Judgment given on October 4, 1954.
